Have you ever stood in a school room and heard twenty-nve or thirty six-year olds sing? If you have not, you've missed something worth while. There is something wrong with any adult whose pulses do not quicken in such a presence. What may not be wrapped up in those little bodies? A great singer, a sculptor, a poet, a statesman, a surgeon in the making! Who knows? He who stands in the presence of litthe children stands in the presence of the future.
